THE IMMORTAL J. N.

Still Continues His Travels Up and Down the Earth.

THE VEIL IS NOT YET LIFTED

The Great Eccentric Has Lost None of His Native Genius and Still Amuses the Populace.

The latest story of the Immortal J. N. comes from Kansas City, says the Mt. Vernon Banner, and is told by J. E. Kelly, of Bowling Green, who, while enroute to Oklahoma, rode some distance in the car with that remarkable man. When near Kansas City, one of the passengers started to eat a lunch he had brought with him. What was his astonishment when the Immortal quietly seated himself beside the stranger and proceeded to help himself to the viands, partaking of the delicacies with the same gusto and vigor as if he had been invited to dine.

This remarkable man's home was for years in Mansfield, where he is well known, but in recent years he has passed much of the time at McCutchenville, which is on the line between Seneca and Wyandot counties, and where one or two of his sisters still reside. He has a mania for traveling and never pays for either transportation or entertainment, though he always puts up at the best hotels. He has a pass over the B. & O. which reads, "Pass J. N. forever." Wherever he goes, he makes addresses and the topic is always "Pressure." To the mind of Immortal J. N. when the veil is torn aside and the pressure lifted the millenium will have come. This is his mission in life—to "lift the pressure."

There are few places in the country where J. N. is not known. During the Civil war he in some manner slipped through the lines. He wanted to see Jeff Davis and was sure if he could only get an interview with the great southern leader he could stop the war. Another man would have met with imprisonment, but J. N. was received with kindness and sent back through the lines to the land that gave him birth.

The immortal J. N. never forgets a name or a face and stories are told of his recognizing persons he has met only in a casual way, 10 or 15 years later. There is a hint of a love story in the life of this notable man, and it is also tinged with melancholy. It is reported that before leaving for the west Free was engaged to be married to a beautiful McCutchenville girl who proved faithless, for on the day he returned from California the first sound that greeted his ears was the church bells ringing for the marriage of his sweetheart to another man. And so J. N. Free, retaining his native nobility, even though his mind is wrecked, passes through life striving ever to "lift the pressure" which in all probability will never be lifted for him until the light of eternity dispels all mists from his mind.

About two years ago a rumor that the immortal J. N. was dead found its way into the newspapers and was copied all over the country. But the subject of it is very much alive and traveling about the country as usual.

The writer of this saw him in Columbus a few years ago when he remarked: "Tell John C. Fisher that whenever he learns enough to give J. N. a decent puff in his paper to send me a marked copy."

The great eccentric visited this town very often years ago and is known here by a great many people.

THROUGH TAXATION

Mingo Junction Strikers Will Draw Pay From Their Employers.

At Mingo Junction a new turn will be taken on the steel magnates. The Amalgamated strike takes effect there in the works of the National Steel company, which institution pays 75 per cent of all the taxes in town. The village council is preparing an ordinance which will give all the strikers employment under the municipality.

The business section of the city is subject to frequent floods from water coming down two ravines, and a system of immense sewers is proposed to take care of the water. The iron men will be employed at this work. Inasmuch as the iron company pays the greater portion of the taxes the men will be employed at the expense of the iron manufacturers while on strike.

CAMP SYCHAR

Now Presents the Appearance of a City of Tents.

Secretary Caton informs the Republican-News that all the tents are up on the Camp Sychar grounds. There are already several families occupying their tents. By this evening there will be quite a number of tents occupied. The meetings begin Tuesday, and the attendance it is said bids fair to eclipse that of any former years. The grounds have been thoroughly cleaned and present a neat and attractive appearance.—Mt. Vernon Republican-News.

The result of the race between Joe Patchen and Anaconda, at Brighton Beach today, will be bulletined at McManus Bros'. this evening. it.

JULY DEATHS.

A Month With an Unusually Large List of Fatalities.

Twelve deaths is the record for July. Health Officer Foster sent in his report Saturday to the authorities at Columbus. It follows: Cholera infantum, two; cancer, two; consumption, two; heart disease, one; meningitis, one; uraemia, one; convulsions, one; marasmus, one; sclerosis of the liver, one. Four of the deaths were children under one year old.

STROKE OF PARALYSIS

Suddenly Siezed William Biggs, of Roscoe.

HIS RECOVERY VERY DOUBTFUL

He Was Walking About Enjoying His Usual Health When the Terrible Affliction Came Upon Him.

William Biggs, an aged citizen of Roscoe, was stricken with paralysis Sunday morning and is very ill. His recovery is doubtful owing to his advanced age.

Mr. Biggs was in his usual health Sunday morning and went to the barn to do some feeding. When he started to go back to the house Robert Henderson, who was in an adjoining lot, noticed that he walked more unsteadily than usual. He went to Mr. Biggs' assistance and asked if he was ill. He replied that he felt as well as usual only his joints seemed so weak. Mr. Henderson assisted him to to the house and he rapidly grew worse, becoming unconscious toward evening. Dr. E. C. Carr was called and found a paralysis on the left side of the body.

The sons and daughters of Mr. Biggs who reside in distant parts have all been sent for. Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Smith, of Columbus, Mrs. Strome, of Warsaw, and William Biggs, a railway mail clerk between Cleveland and Columbus, have arrived.

A USEFUL LIFE ENDED.

John C. Merrell Answers the Final Summons After a Lingering Illness.

John C. Merrell, whose death has been hourly expected for several days, answered the summons Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and passed to the great beyond. He had been ill for several weeks and death resulted from cancer of the stomach. Funeral services will be held at the home on Locust street Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Services will be conducted by Rev. W. M. Hamilton, who was recently called to the pastorate of the Presbyterian church, if it is possible for him to come. Interment will be made in South Lawn cemetery.

Mr. Merrell was born in Mill Creek township, March 13, 1844. His parents were industrious farmers, and he lived with them until a young man when he learned the carpenter trade. He worked at his trade all his life either as a carpenter or contractor except the past ten years when he was engaged in the lumber business in this city. He was married to Miss Jane Patterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Patterson, of Mill Creek township, Oct. 12, 1865. They lived in Millersburg a short time and then moved to this city. He served from 1899 to 1901, one term as city councilman. He has been a faithful member of the Presbyterian church and was a deacon in the church at the time of his death. His business dealings were always honorable and fair. A large circle of friends mourn his death.

Mr. Merrell leaves his wife and seven children, Harvey E., William S., J. Calvin, Lewis, Delbert W., Florence, Adaline and Lucy, all grown except Lucy. They all live in this city except Lewis Merrell, who is mayor of Warsaw.

Among the other passengers scalded are Steve Broskie, W. N. Campbell, James O. Smith, J. E. Henry and Edward Miller, all of McKeesport. None of these will die, though all are seriously burned. Of the 18 passengers aboard the yacht none escaped burns.

Ineffectual Effort to Start Mills at McKeesport.

LACK OF MEN BALKED TRUST PLAN

President Shaffer Had Strikers On Guard With Instructions to Use Moral Suasion—Trust Officials Are Elated Over Refusal of Western Men to Obey Strike Order.

Pittsburg, Aug. 12.—Strikers won a signal victory at McKeesport and Allegheny in the onset of the strike operations this week, while the steel trust officials received gratifying reports from western mills.

The puddling furnaces of the National rolling mill at McKeesport were fired preparatory to a start of the mill at 3 o'clock this morning. The strikers had the entire plant picketed all night. The management had a score of extra coal and iron police on duty and was determined to have the mill in operation before 6 o'clock. Every Amalgamated man in McKeesport was ordered by President Shaffer to go on picket duty about the tube works at 2:30 o'clock. His instructions were to stop and interview every man entering the plant and endeavor to dissuade him from going to work, but in no event to try to prevent by force.

The fires were pulled at the Republic mill and at the Painetrs mill at 3 o'clock this morning because of lack of men. The Lindsay & McCutcheon mill in Allegheny also gave up the attempt to start.

The Amalgamated Association has developed great strength in Wheeling district and has made gains in some of the Pennsylvania districts.

The iron masters derived most satisfaction because of the refusal of the Amalgamated men at South Chicago, Joliet and Bayview to obey the general strike order of President Shaffer, and success in maintaining operations in other plants where it was anticipated there would be trouble.

The strike leaders meet the claims of victory with the assertion that their cause is making satisfactory progress and that they will show themselves masters of the situation before the contest has progressed much farther. They do not conceal their disappointment at the refusal of the western brethren to join with them in the strike, but none of the leaders would discuss the defection. They declared there would be developments throughout the week that would materially change the situation. They would not say, however, what they had in mind or how their cause was to gain strength. It was said that they were counting on strong aid from the American Federation of Labor and other union labor organizations, but those bodies have not yet given public indication of what they will do.

The steel officials, who kept in communication with their superintendents and district managers, summarized the situation thus: South Chicago, Joliet and Bayview at Milwaukee voted to stay in; the Ohio works of the National Steel company, Youngstown, and the King, Gilbert & Warner plants of the National Steel company at Columbus resumed without trouble; the Homestead, Edgar Thompson, Duquesne, Upper and Lower Union and Howard axle works of the Carnegie group, employing more than 15,000 men, resumed work without trouble; the converting and the blooming mills of the National Tube company at McKeesport had started without difficulty, and that Bellaire had been only partially crippled. They were also advised that the men of the Boston rolling mills at McKeesport had notified the National Tube company that they would go out and that at the National Tube plant at McKeesport many men would go out. They were also notified that their Wheeling plants were crippled.

The steel officials were elated over their showing at the Carnegie plants and in Illinois, Ohio and Wisconsin, and expressed confidence in speedy victory over the strikers.

Michigan Men Strike.

Muskegon, Mich., Aug. 12.—The 400 employes of the American Tin Plate company's plant here, all of whom belong to the Amalgamated Association, are on strike. If the struggle continues long it will affect the independent mill of the American Rolling Mill company, which employes about 300 men, all members of the Amalgamated Association.

Tithes For Strike Fund.

Cincinnati, Aug. 12.—Local Lodges 1, 5 and 8 of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers of Covington and Newport, Ky., have been notified to contribute 10 per cent of their wages for the benefit of the striking members. All the mills in these cities are independent of the trust, and no trouble is anticipated.

Two Big Blazes In Havre.

Havre, Aug. 12.—The Gravilles spinning and weaving factory on the Rue Demidoff and the sawmill of DeVaux Frees on the Rue De La Bedoliere, with a whole block of buildings between them, have been destroyed by fire. The damage is estimated at 2,000,000 francs.

Prominent Mason Dead.

Tiffin, O., Aug. 12.—Captain John W. Chamberlain, 65, cashier of the Tiffin National bank and a prominent Mason, died at his home here. He was trustee of the Masonic home at Springfield, O.

Mr. Joseph R. Kynett, locomotive engineer, of 830 E. Patterson street, Alliance, O., says: "For 35 years I stood at the throttle, flying over crossings, frogs and rough places on the road. It is no wonder my kidneys bothered me and that I suffered through their inactivity or their being over excited. Doan's Kidney Pills are the best kidney medicine in existence. I was treated by physicians and used patent medicines, but nothing equals Doan's Kidney Pills. Since I stopped the treatment I have had the grippe, but my kidneys did not annoy me."

The A. R. Bremer Co.

Challenges the Citizens of Coshocton.

A Public Test to be Made and the result to be published in this paper.

This important challenge is not only to the citizens of Coshocton, but to the entire civilized world. The public will be interested in the outcome of this investigation to prove the merits of their already famous discovery. The offer made by the A. R. Bremer Company in their challenge above alluded to is a plainly worded one. They assert that their discovery, Coke Dandruff Cure, will positively cure the most stubborn and common of all troubles, dandruff and falling hair, which 90 per cent of people are annoyed with.

It is thought that the best possible way to publicly determine the merit of Coke Dandruff Cure is to give away to all those interested in this matter a sample bottle, and to have it done in such an open manner that none can question the honesty of the test.

A large number of samples have been sent to Siegrist & Williams' drug store, and will be given out to all those troubled with dandruff, falling hair, or any disease of the scalp. Apply to-day between 8 a. m. and 9 p. m.

There will also be given to each applicant for a free sample a little book treating on troubles of the hair and scalp, which sets out in a clear, plain manner just such information as you want to know.

Bear in mind the free distribution at Siegrist & Williams' drug store this morning at 8 o'clock and end Tuesday (to-morrow) at 9 p. m.

The Bradley Martins.

Bradley Martin has at last become a full fledged English man, and the personal property of himself and wife is now to get assessable in New York. On the tax books just opened there is an entry showing that the personal assessment on Mr and Mrs. Bradley Martin for 1901 has been sworn off. The claim was made under oath by Bradley Martin last year that he had renounced allegiance to the United States and had decided to make his permanent residence in England. The tax commissioners refused to allow the claim. This year President Feitner is of the opinion that the Bradley Martins have at last established a permanent residence in London, and all the personal taxes were crossed off the books.

War Destructive to Forests.

Twenty-five years ago, in 1876, Servia was clothed with forests and was aptly termed "the land of the forest," but the Servian-Turco trouble of 1876-8 played havoc with the forests. Thousands of acres were stripped of trees in order to serve for fortifications or to bar the advance of the Turkish army or to warm the great masses of troops that camped on the land during two winters. The war was followed by a period of ruthless destruction of the forests, vast tracts being sold at a ridiculous price or demanded to supply the railroads.—National Geographic Magazine.

Marie Corelli.

Here is a description of Marie Corelli, whose novels have an immense vogue in England and are also popular here: "Her abundant hair is of a golden shade and curls and waves naturally about her head. She has a clear complexion, regular features, and her eyes are a deep blue and full of soul. Her figure is petite and perfectly proportioned. She is altogether a most charming personality."

Money and Advice.

A certain wealthy benefactor of Harvard humorously complained of President Eliot's treatment. "He comes to me," he said, "for my money and my advice, and, like the women in the Scripture, the one is taken and the other left."

A MINISTER'S GOOD WORK.

"I had a severe attack of bilious colic, got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, took two doses and was entirely cured," says Rev. A. A. Power, of Emporia, Kan. "My neighbor across the street was sick for over a week, had two or three bottles of medicine from the doctor. He used them for three or four days without relief, then called in another doctor who treated him for some days and gave him no relief, so discharged him. I went over to see him the next morning. He said his bowels were in a terrible fix, that they had been running off so long that it was almost bloody flux. I asked him if he had tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and he said 'No.' I went home and brought him my bottle and gave him one dose; told him to take another dose in fifteen or twenty minutes if he did not find relief, but he took no more and was entirely cured. I think it the best medicine I have ever tried." For sale by C. E. Anderson, No. 2 Forbes Block

TRIPPED IN BOSTON.

Smooth Pair From the Wild and Woolly West.

SPECIAL FONDNESS FOR SPARKLERS

Diamonds Pawned In Several Cities and Had Jewels Galore In Their Pockets—Cleveland One of Their Stopping Places—Also Said to Be Experts at the Badger Game.

Boston, Aug. 12.—Two noted characters of the wild and woolly west have become enmeshed in the toils of the law here at The Hub, and it appears, from advices forwarded by Chicago police authorities, that both are expert "badgers," with a predilection for sparklers, which is further confirmed by a confession the woman is said to have made.

The woman is Nellie Pentony, with such aliases as Nellie Watson, May Dunn and "Blonde" Nellie. Her partner is John Pentony, alias John Warner, alias John Barr. When searched at police headquarters the woman's tiny pocketbook concealed in her dress yielded seven diamond rings and a diamond studded locket and pawn tickets for diamonds pawned in New York city, Buffalo, Chicago and Cleveland. In the room the couple had occupied were found jewelry and other articles.

The arrest came about by accident, the woman being taken a few nights ago for night walking. She was fined in court and was sent to Deer Island in default of bail. Her husband secured cash bail and got her release, coming to the city from the island with her. After the woman's arrest Chief Inspector Watts was notified from Chicago that two "badger workers" and diamond nippers had come east and were thought to be in Boston. The description furnished seemed to fit the woman, but the officers were not certain about the man. When Pentony and the woman stepped off the Deer Island boat they were escorted to police headquarters and were given an opportunity to tell their history. The story both told was smooth, but when the woman was confronted with the Bertillon measurements and pictures taken of her in St. Louis May 26, 1897, when arrested there for larceny, she admitted that her part of the story was wrong. They were accordingly locked up for a hearing.

The police say four pawn tickets obtained in Boston were for jewelry pledged for $150, and 15 tickets for jewelry pledges in other places were for diamond rings and lockets. In the room of the couple were two satchels. In the man's satchel were articles and pawn tickets for jewelry stolen from houses in this vicinity and a gold watch picked from a man's pocket in Lynn, Mass.

Pentony admitted having been arrested at different times in New York and Chicago, and at the former place an indictment is held against him.

Talmage Sermon

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage represents religion as a great refreshment and invites all the world to come and receive it; text, Genesis xxix. 8, "We cannot until all the flocks be gathered together and till they roll the stone from the well's mouth; then we water the sheep."

A scene in Mesopotamia, beautifully pastoral. A well of water of great value in that region. The fields around about it white with three flocks of sheep lying down waiting for the watering. I hear their bleating coming on the bright air and the laughter of young men and maidens indulging in rustic repartee. I look off, and I see other flocks of sheep coming. Meanwhile Jacob, a stranger, on the interesting errand of looking for a wife, comes to the well. A beautiful shepherdess comes to the same well. I see her approaching, followed by her father's flock of sheep. It was a memorable meeting. Jacob married that shepherdess. The Bible account of it is, "Jacob kissed Rachel and lifted up his voice and wept." It has always been a mystery to me what he found to cry about! But before that scene occurred Jacob accosts the shepherds and asks them why they postpone the slaking of the thirst of these sheep and why they did not immediately proceed to water them. The shepherds reply to the effect: "We are all good neighbors, and as a matter of courtesy we wait until all the sheep of the neighborhood come up. Besides that, this stone on the well's mouth is somewhat heavy, and several of us take hold of it and push it aside, and then the buckets and the troughs are filled and the sheep are satisfied. We cannot until all the flocks are gathered together and till they roll the stone from the well's mouth; then we water the sheep."

Oh, this is a thirsty world! Hot for the head, and blistering for the feet, and parching for the tongue. The world's great want is a cool, refreshing, satisfying draft. We wander around, and we find the cistern empty. Long and tedious drought has dried up the world's fountain, but centuries ago a Shepherd, with crook in the shape of a cross and feet cut to the bleeding, explored the desert passages of this world and one day came across a well a thousand feet deep, bubbling and bright and opalescent, and looked to the north, and the south, and the east, and the west, and cried out with a voice strong and musical, that rang through the ages, "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters!"

Now, a great flock of sheep today gather around this gospel well. There are a great many thirsty souls. I wonder why the flocks of all nations do not gather, why so many stay thirsty, and while I am wondering about it my text breaks forth in the explanation, saying, "We cannot until all the flocks be gathered together and till they roll the stone from the well's mouth; then we water the sheep."

Coming to the Gospel Well.

If a herd of swine come to a well, they angrily jostle each other for the precedence; if a drove of cattle come to a well, they hook each other back from the water, but when a flock of sheep come, though a hundred of them shall be disappointed, they only express it by sad bleating, they come together peaceably. We want a great multitude to come around the gospel well. I know there are those who do not like a crowd; they think a crowd is vulgar. If they are oppressed for room in church, it makes them positively impatient and belligerent. We have had people permanently leave church because so many other people come to it. Not so did these oriental shepherds. They waited until all the flocks were gathered, and the more flocks that came the better they liked it. And so we ought to be anxious that all the people should come. Go out into the highways and the hedges and compel them to come in. Go to the rich and tell them they are indigent without the gospel of Jesus. Go to the poor and tell them the affluence there is in Christ. Go to the blind and tell them of the touch that gives eternal illumination. Go to the lame and tell them of the joy that will make the lame man leap like a hart. Gather all the sheep off all the mountains. None so torn of the dogs, none so sick, none so worried, none so dying, as to be omitted. Why not gather a great flock? All this city in a flock, all New York in a flock, all London in a flock, all the world in a flock.

This well of the gospel is deep enough to put out the burning thirst of the 1,000,000,000 of the race. Do not let the church by a spirit of exclusiveness keep the world out. Let down all the bars, swing open all the gates, scatter all the invitations. "Whosoever will, let him come." Come, white and black. Come, red men of the forest. Come, Laplander, out of the snow. Come, Patagonian, out of the south. Come in furs. Come panting under palm leaves. Come one. Come all. Come now. As at this well of Mesopotamia Jacob and Rachel were betrothed, so this morning at this well of salvation Christ, our Shepherd, will meet you coming up with your long flocks of cares and anxieties, and he will stretch out his hand in pledge of his affection, while all heaven will cry out: "Behold, the bridegroom cometh! Go ye out to meet Him."

You notice that this well of Mesopotamia had a stone on it, which must be removed before the sheep could be watered, and I find on the well of salvation today impediments and obstacles which must be removed in order that you may obtain the refreshment and life of this gospel. In your case the impediment is pride of heart. You cannot bear to come to so democratic a fountain; you do not want to come with so many others. It is as though you were thirsty and you were invited to slake your thirst at the town pump instead of sitting in a parlor sipping out of a chased chalice which has just been lifted from a silver salver. Not so many publicans and sinners. You want to get to heaven, but you must be in a special car, with your feet on a Turkish ottoman and a band of music on board the train. You do not want to be in company with rustic Jacob and Rachel and to be drinking out of the fountain where 10,000 sheep have been drinking before you. You will have to remove the obstacle of pride or never find your way to the well. You will have to come as we came, willing to take the water of eternal life in any way and at any hand and in any kind of pitcher, crying out: "Oh, Lord Jesus, I am dying of thirst! Give me the water of eternal life, whether in trough or goblet! Give me the water of life! I care not in what it comes to me." Away with all your hindrances of pride from the well's mouth!

Why Some Are Kept Back.

Here is another man who is kept back from this water of life by the stone of an obdurate heart which lies over the mouth of the well. You have no more feeling upon this subject than if God had yet to do you the first kindness or you had to do God the first wrong. Seated on his lap all these years, his everlasting arms sheltering you, where is your gratitude? Where is your morning and evening prayer? Where are your consecrated lives? I say to you, as Daniel said to Belshazzar, "The God in whose hand thy breath is, and all thy way, thou hast not glorified." If you treated anybody as badly as you have treated God, you would have made 500 apologies; yea, your whole life would have been an apology. Three times a day you have been seated at God's table. Spring, summer, autumn and winter he has appropriately appareled you. Your health from him, your companion from him, your children from him, your home from him, all the bright surroundings of your life from him. Oh, man, what dost thou with that hard heart? Canst thou not feel one throb of gratitude toward the God that made you, and the Christ who came to redeem you, and the Holy Ghost who has all these years been importuning you? If you could sit down five minutes under the tree of a Saviour's martyrdom and feel his lifeblood trickling on your forehead and cheek and hands, methinks you would get some appreciation of what you owe to a crucified Jesus.

Heart of stone, relent, relent,
Touched by Jesus' cross, subdued;
See his body, mangled, rent,
Covered with a gore of blood.
Sinful soul, what hast thou done?
Crucified the Eternal Son!

Jacob, with a good deal of tug and push, took the stone from the well's mouth so that the flocks might be watered. And I would that this day my word, blessed of God, might remove the hindrances to your getting up to the gospel well. Yea, I take it for granted that the work is done, and now, like oriental shepherds, I proceed to water the sheep. Come, all ye thirsty! You have an undefined longing in your soul. You tried money making; that did not satisfy you. You tried office under government; that did not satisfy you. You tried pictures and sculptures, but works of art did not satisfy you. You are as much discontented with this life as the celebrated French author who felt that he could not any longer endure the misfortunes of the world and who said: "At 4 o'clock this afternoon I shall put an end to my own existence. Meanwhile I must toil on up to that time for the sustenance of my family." And he wrote on his book until the clock struck 4, when he folded up his manuscript and, by his own hand, concluded his earthly life.

Christ's Eternal Fountains.

There are men who are perfectly discontented. Unhappy in the past, unhappy today, to be unhappy forever unless you come to this gospel well. This satisfies the soul with a high, deep, all absorbing and eternal satisfaction. It comes, and it offers the most unfortunate man so much of this world as is best for him and throws all heaven into the bargain. The wealth of Croesus and of all the Rothschilds is only a poor, miserable shilling compared with the eternal fortunes that Christ offers you today. In the far east there was a king who used once a year to get on the scales, while on the other side the scales were placed gold and silver and gems—indeed, enough were placed there to balance the king. Then, at the close of the weighing, all those treasures were thrown among the populace. But Christ today steps on one side the scales, and on the other side are all the treasures of the universe, and he says, "All are yours: all height, all depth, all length, all breadth, all eternity—all are yours." We do not appreciate the promises of the gospel.

When an aged clergyman was dying—a man very eminent in the church—a young theological student stood by his side, and the aged man looked up and said to him, "Can't you give me some comfort in my dying hour?" "No," said the young man; "I can't talk to you on this subject. You know all about it and have known it so long." "Well," said the dying man, "just recite to me some promises." The young man thought a moment, and he came to this promise: "The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin," and the old man clapped his hands and in his dying moment said, "That's just the promise I have been waiting for—'The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin.'" Oh, the warmth, the grandeur, the magnificence, of the promise!

Come also to this gospel well, all ye trustless. I do not suppose you have escaped. Compare your view of this life at 15 years of age with what your view is of it at 40 or 50 or 70. What a great contrast of opinion! Were you right then or are you right now? Two cups placed in your hands, the one a sweet cup, the other a sour cup. A cup of joy and a cup of grief. Which has been the nearest to being full, and out of which have you the more frequently partaken? What a different place the cemetery is from what it used to me! Once it was to you a grand city improvement, and you went out on the pleasure excursion, and you ran laughingly up the mound, and you criticised in a light way the epitaph. But since the day when you heard the bell toll at the gate when you went in with the procession it is a sad place, and there is a flood of rushing memories that suffuse the eye and overmaster the heart. Oh, you have had trouble, trouble, trouble! God only knows how much you have had. It is a wonder you have been able to live through it. It is a wonder your nervous system has not been shattered and your brain has not reeled. Trouble, trouble!

The Cry For Comfort.

If I could gather all the griefs of all sorts from these crowded streets and could put them in one scroll, neither man nor angel could endure the recitation. Well, what do you want? Would you like to have your property back again? "No" you say as a Christian man; "I was becoming arrogant, and I think that is why the Lord took it away. I don't want to have my property back." Well would you have your departed friends back again? "No," you say; "I couldn't take the responsibility of bringing them from a fearless realm to a realm of tears. I couldn't do it." Well, then, what do you want? A thousand voices in the audience cry out: "Comfort. Give us comfort!" For that reason I have rolled away the stone from the well's mouth. Come, all ye wounded of the flock, pursued of the wolves, come to the fountain where the Lord's sick and bereft ones have come. "Ah," says some one, "you are not old enough to understand my sorrows. You have not been in the world as long as I have, and you can't talk to me about my misfortunes in the time of old age." Well, I may not have lived as long as you, but I have been a great deal among old people, and I know how they feel about their failing health and about their departed friends and about the loneliness that sometimes strikes through their souls.

After two persons have lived together for 40 or 50 years and one is taken away, what desolation! I shall not forget the cry of Dr. De Witt of New York when he stood by the open grave of his beloved wife and after the obsequies had ended he looked down into the open place and said: "Farewell, my honored, faithful and beloved wife. The bond that bound us is severed. Thou art in glory, and I am here on earth. We shall meet again. Farewell, farewell!"

To lean on a prop for 50 years and then have it break under you! There were only two years' difference between the death of my father and mother. After my mother's decease my father used to go around as though looking for something. He would often get up from one room without any seeming reason and go to another room, and then he would take his cane and start out, and some one would say, "Father, where are you going?" and he would answer, "I don't know exactly where I am going." Always looking for something! Though he was a tender hearted man I never saw him cry but once, and that was at the burial of my mother. After 60 years' living together it was hard to part. And there are aged people today who are feeling just such a pang as that. I want to tell them there is perfect enchantment in the promises of this gospel, and I come to them and offer them my arm, or I take their arm and I bring them to this gospel well. Sit down, father or mother, sit down. See if there is anything at the well for you. Come, David, the psalmist, have you anything encouraging to offer them? "Yes," says the psalmist: "they shall still bring forth fruit in old age; they shall be fat and flourishing, to show that the Lord is upright. He is my rock, and there is no unrighteousness in him." Come, Isaiah, have you anything to say out of your prophecies for these aged people? "Yes," says Isaiah: "down to old age I am with thee, and to hoary hairs will I carry thee." Well, if the Lord is going to carry you, you ought not to worry much about your ailing eyesight and failing limbs.

Trust in God's Providences.

You get a little worried for fear that some time you will come to want, do you? Your children and grandchildren sometimes speak a little sharp to you because of your ailments. The Lord will not speak sharp. Do you think you will come to want? What do you think the Lord is? Are his granaries empty? Will he feed the raven and the rabbit and the lion in the desert and forget you? Why, naturalists tell us that the porpoise will not forsake its wounded and sick mate. And do you suppose the Lord of heaven and earth has not as much sympathy as the fish of the sea? But you say, "I am so near worn out, and I am of no use to God any more." I think the Lord knows whether you are of any more use or not. If you were of no more use, he would have taken you before this. Do you think God has forgotten you because he has taken care of you 70 or 80 years? He thinks more of you today than he ever did because you think more of him. May the God of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and Paul be aged be your God forever! But I gather all the promises today in a group, and I ask the shepherds to drive their flocks of lambs and sheep up to the sparkling supply. "Behold, happy is the man whom God correcteth." "Though he cause grief, yet will he have compassion." "Many are the afflictions of the righteous, but the Lord delivereth him out of them all." "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning." I am determined that no one shall go out of this house uncomforted. Yonder is a timid and shrinking soul who seems to hide away from the consolations I am uttering as a child with a sore hand hides away from the physician lest he touch the wound too roughly, and the mother has to go and compel the little patient to come out and see the physician. So I come to your timid and shrinking soul today and compel you to come out in the presence of the Divine Physician. He will not hurt you. He has been healing wounds for many years, and he will give you gentle and omnipotent medicament.

But people when they have trouble go anywhere rather than to God. De Quincey took opium to get rid of his troubles. Charles Lamb took to punch. Theodore Hook took to something stronger. Edwin Forrest took to theatrical dissipation. And men have run all around the earth, hoping in the quick transit to get away from their misfortunes. It has been a dead failure. There is only one well that can slake the thirst of an afflicted spirit, and that is the deep and inexhaustible well of the gospel.

But some one in the audience says, "Notwithstanding all you have said this morning, I find no alleviation for my troubles." Well, I am not through yet. I have left the most potent consideration for the last. I am going to soothe you with the thought of heaven. However talkative we may be, there will come a time when the stoutest and most emphatic interrogation will evoke from us no answer. As soon as we have closed our lips for the final silence no power on earth can break that taciturnity. But where, O Christian, will be your spirit? In a scene of infinite gladness. The spring morning of heaven waving its blossoms in the bright air. Victors fresh from battle showing their scars. The rain of earthly sorrow struck through with the rainbow of eternal joy. In one group God and angels and the redeemed. Paul and Silas, Latimer and Ridley, Isaiah and Jeremiah, Payson and John Milton, Gabriel and Michael the archangel. Long line of choristers reaching across the hills. Seas of joy dashing to the white beach. Conquerors marching from gate to gate. You among them. Oh, what a great flock God will gather around the celestial well! No stone on the well's mouth where the Shepherd waters the sheep. There Jacob will recognize Rachel the shepherdess. And standing on one side of the well of eternal rapture your children, and standing on the other side of eternal rapture your Christian ancestry. You will be bounded on all sides by a joy so keen and grand that no other world has ever been permitted to experience it. Out of that one deep well of heaven the Shepherd will dip reunion for the bereaved, wealth for the poor, health for the sick, rest for the weary. And then all the flock of the Lord's sheep will lie down in the green pastures, and world without end we will praise the Lord that on this summer Sabbath morning we were permitted to study the story of Jacob and Rachel at the well.

The Seaside Gossips.

"Why are you so late?" he asked, looking up from the luncheon table as his wife hurriedly entered, with a flushed, vexed face.

"Just because I would not leave the beach before that spiteful Mrs. Sharp and give her the satisfaction of criticising me!" she exclaimed, sinking into a chair. "There were six or eight of us sitting on the sand together," she continued, "and the first to get up and go away was Alice B.

"'How that poor girl has gone off!' Mrs. Sharp began. 'She used to be pretty, but she has not a ray of good looks left.'

"'She is getting on,' some one else chimed in. 'She must be nearly 30,' and so on.

"Without really intending to be disagreeable nearly every one made some disparaging remark. Then another one of the group strolled off, and Mrs. Sharp said something ridiculous about her, at which every one laughed. Another and another left, and it was the same thing over again. I felt it was time for me to go, but I really had not the courage, for Mrs. Sharp does not like me and I knew I should be held up to ridicule, so that I sat on and on until she and I were the only two left, and we walked up to our carriages together in the most amiable manner possible."—New York Tribune.

An Aged "Greenback."

The Bankers' Magazine recently printed a facsimile of a Chinese treasury note of the year 1367, probably the oldest piece of paper money in existence. This note was found last January, along with other valuables, in a bronze statue of Buddha which stood in a temple within the inclosure of the summer palace of the dowager empress of China. Italian soldiers engaged in looting broke a hole in the base of the figure, and the paper money tumbled out along with gold, silver and brass coins, lentils, rice, rolls of prayers, etc. The note was issued, according to the printing on it, "by the board of revenue of the Emperor Hung Wu in the year 1367," and its value is stated to be 250 taels (about 167). It professed to be "redeemable in silver bullion."

Besides being the oldest known piece of paper money, this treasury note makes it clear that Gutenberg was not the first user of movable type. The note was clearly printed with movable type at a date over a hundred years before Gutenberg began to experiment. The German printer was born in 1410, long after the use of movable type in China. It is asserted, in fact, that the Chinese employed movable type as early as the eleventh century.

Tricked by a Photograph.

A prominent lawyer successfully worked a clever scheme on a gang of workmen employed by the city recently which enabled him to win a suit for damages from the municipality. A client of the lawyer was driving along one of the principal streets when the wheel of his wagon struck a hole, causing him to fall and injure himself. After the case had been placed in the hands of the lawyer on the day following the accident he had a photographer visited the scene of the accident to make some photographs of the hole in the street to be used in court.

He was surprised to find that the city had sent a gang of workmen to repair the cause of the accident. It was impossible for the photographer to make any pictures while the workmen were about, and after a few moments' thought the lawyer invited the entire gang of workmen to have a drink at a nearby saloon. Each of them accepted his invitation, and while they were gone the photographer got in his work. What the testimony of the witnesses in the case failed to show satisfactorily to the jury when the suit was tried was adequately proved by the photographs, and a verdict was rendered in favor of the lawyer's client.—Philadelphia Times.

WITH SOLEMN POMP

Royal Relatives Pay Tribute to the Late Empress.

THE FUNERAL RITES AT CRONBERG

Britain's King Shares the Sorrow of Germany's Ruler — Impressive Services in a Historical Edifice of Mediaeval Era — Formalities Incident to Edward's Presence.

Cronberg, Aug 12.—Thousands of people came here, attracted by the requiem service Sunday in honor of the deceased Empress Frederick.

Officers of regiments of which the deceased was honorary colonel stood guard over the coffin. Carriages from Homburg, Frankfort and other points brought those invited to the solemn ceremony. Considerable bodies of troops, both infantry and cavalry, also arrived. At 2:30 p. m. the Eightieth regiment formed up along the streets and the band of the Bockenheim hussars took its stand over the church. Every window, balcony and housetop was filled with people awaiting the arrival of the imperial personages. Baron Von Reischal, court marshal of the dowager empress, superintended the arrangements. Sir Frank Lascelles, the British ambassador, was among the first to arrive. He took a seat facing the coffin, which was covered with wreaths. On either side of the coffin were four officers holding the standards of Prussia and of the deceased. Between them and the coffin were other officials bearing drawn swords. Gradually the church filled with officers in splendid uniform and women wearing deep mourning. The congregation included the Duke of Connaught, the Duke of Cambridge and several members of the British royal household, the Count Von Buelow, Count Von Waldersee, Dr. Spielhagen and General Von Lindequist.

The roll of muffled drums at 4 o'clock announced the arrival of Emperor William and King Edward, who had driven together from Homburg. The emperor, wearing the black uniform of the empress' own Posen Hussars, led Queen Alexandra into the church, while King Edward, in blue uniform of the King Edward Prussian dragoons, conducted Empress Augusta Victoria. Princess Victoria, with Crown Prince Frederick William and a number of his suite, followed. Their majesties occupied a pew to the left of the chancel, the one in which the deceased used to sit, while grouped around the chancel stood the other imperial and royal personages mentioned, together with Prince Adelbert of Prussia, Prince and Princess Schaumburg-Lippe, the hereditary Prince of Saxe-Meiningen, Prince and Princess Charles of Hesse, the Grand Duke of Baden, the Crown Prince and Princess of Greece, with their children and the Prince of Reuss, together with the suites of all.

As the organist played the funeral march Dr. Dryander advanced to the head of the coffin. The four eldest sons of Emperor William stepped forward with drawn swords and stood close to the coffin. The choir from Berlin cathedral sang "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," and Dr. Dryander read a specially written prayer and delivered an oration extolling the virtues of the departed empress, dwelling on her trials and sorrows.

The choir sang the anthem, "The Spirit Sayeth They May Rest From Their Labors," followed by the hymn, "Wenn Ich Einmel Soll Schieden," and "Be Thou Faithful Unto Death." As the last strains died away King Edward and Queen Alexandra advanced and laid a wreath upon the coffin. The king remained standing a few moments alone beside the coffin and then turned and left the church, which was slowly evacuated.

The service owed much of its impressiveness to the historical associations recalled by the mediaeval edifice in which it was held. After the service the king and queen returned to omburg, accompanied by the emperor and empress.

Edward's Arrival at Homburg.

Homburg, Aug. 12. — The city of Homburg was astir early to witness the arrival of King Edward. Emperor William in the uniform of a field marshal, accompanied by the empress and their sons, together with their suites, was followed by Count Von Waldersee, Count Von Buelow and others, who drove to the railway station about 9 o'clock. The emperor reviewed the guard of honor. At 9:16 the royal train arrived. King Edward, in the blue uniform of the Prussian dragoons, alighted with Queen Alexandra, Princess Victoria and Prince Nicholas of Greece. Emperor William affectionately clasped the hand of the British monarch and gave him a cordial welcome. He then kissed the hands of Queen Alexandra and Princess Victoria. Their majesties conversed a few minutes and their respective suites were introduced. King Edward warmly shaking the hand of Count Von Waldersee. The guard of honor then marched past, after which the imperial and royal party was escorted to a hotel, where the emperor and empress remained a quarter of an hour, and then drove to Homburg castle. The streets were not lined with troops and the carriages were not escorted by cavalry. King Edward and Queen Alexandra returned the visit of the emperor and empress at the castle.

AT THE STAKE.

Georgia Negro Burned and Negroes Approved the Punishment.

Savannah, Ga., Aug. 12.—Eighteen miles south of Savannah, near the Seaboard Air line railway, the charred trunk of the body of Joe Washington, the negro ravisher of Mrs. J. J. Clark, is all that remains to tell the story of a terrible tragedy. Washington was captured at Liberty City and brought to the place where his crime was committed. He was taken before Mrs. Clark, who identified him positively as the negro who had assaulted her. The proof of guilt was absolute and includes circumstances that scarcely can be hinted at in print. A mob of 400 men clamored for his life, but the leaders, numbering less than a dozen, carried into execution the plans of vengeance. The rest of the mob was not permitetd to come within 100 yards. The execution was about 500 yards from the house in which the crime was committed. Washington walked to his death without a tremor and met it without a prayer or an appeal for mercy. To the end he refused to admit he assaulted Mrs. Clark. A crowbar was driven into the earth. To this Washington was bound in a sitting position. Washington's victim was asked by the mob to apply the torch, but this she refused to do. Her husband was selected in her stead. Washington looked straight into the eyes of Clark as the latter applied the match. The wood was saturated with kerosene oil. Washington showed no signs of agony and met death without a groan. Negro citizens of the section of Bryant county in which the tragedy took place were almost a unit in approving it, many of them being in the mob.

The average paid for these animals is $50 a head, making the total expenditure $5,000,000 in Missouri and Kansas.

SHOE DEPARTMENT.

Perfect styles, highest grades. Prices that will save you money.

We have filled this department with a stock of shoes which we believe is unsurpassed in Coshocton. The most painstaking care has been used in making the selections. The best shoes are here—shoes that look well and wear well. The prices are much lower than competitors can hope to offer.

The American Auction Syndicate is a department store. Shoes occupy only one department. We are spared the expense of renting and equipping a store for the sale of shoes alone. When you buy a pair of shoes elsewhere you pay for elaborate fixtures. You pay for the rent of a large room. You help pay all the expenses of running a shoe store.

At the American Auction Syndicate the expenses of fixtures, rent, clerk hire, etc. are divided among 12 different departments—each store in itself, but subject to the expenses of one-twelfth of a store only. Hence when you buy a pair of shoes here you pay for just shoes.
